P. M.

Dear Marty:-

We must no end heard of you rating on your lesson plans, when I read it to Nana she cried for she thinks that you are just the brightest kid that ever was.

Of course Papa and I talked it over, as well as your plan for coming home a week ahead if, as you say you can shave the time from your studies, so we have this time that you have the week, and I shall look for you about then.

I walked with Pearly James a few nights ago - I guess that's all. He was very interesting, but I was embarrassed in his presence that I had a nice time to him. Why! but how he did shave his mustache. A mighty nice looking fellow. a mighty nice of them he just more wilk, this time it is her black walnut chamber set, which is to be held in trust by me until you wish to claim it. It is fifty or sixty years old, was bought in war time and cost one hundred and seventy five dollars cash, It would have been two hundred on the installment plan. It is solid ~~the~~ black walnut, and marble. I do not know what you will think of such a gift, but it means a whole lot to Nana, for it is the dearest household treasure that she has ever had, and she wants it kept nice. She says that she knows that you would take good care of it for her sake, and remember her by it when she is laid away.

Of course it is perfectly dear of her to want you to have
